PACKERS ASKED ALLOW FARMERS MORE

January Fading, Leaving Ice, Snow

(By The Associated Press)
It wasn't 'June in January' in Ohio today. The first month of the year skidded toward the exits leaving behind typical winter weather, areas with plenty of snow and numerous icy highways.
While flurries were reported in the Cleveland-Canton-Youngstown triangle, no more snow is predicted for the immediate future. The snow and ice already on the ground was enough to make most adult Ohioans grumble.
Cleveland was buried under a seven-inch blanket this morning. The accumulation tapered down to two inches at Youngstown.
The southern half of the state had little or no snow yesterday and last night, but ice was everywhere except on the heavily traveled traffic arteries which received heavy salt treatments.
Cold Canadian air was moving over Ohio, dropping temperatures to 10 in Findlay, 15 in Columbus and Cincinnati, 17 in Cleveland and Zanesville and 23 in Chesapeake. Still lower temperatures are expected tonight.

ANOTHER LOW pressure area is developing in the Far West, the Weather Bureau reported. This may bring more snow to Ohio in the next few days, the bureau said. It was a low pressure area originating in Texas which started Ohio's weather troubles 36 hours ago.
The five-day forecast for Ohio predicts more snow about Thursday, but little or no precipitation during the period.
Sub-freezing temperatures probably will remain for the full five days with a warming trend expected for Sunday.
Highways were reported slippery north of a line marked by Bryan, Upper Sandusky, Wooster, Ravenna and Jefferson—a broad curve extending southward from the northern corners of the state.
Roads in the Youngstown, Kenton and Ottawa areas also were slippery. Slippery spots also were reported in the area bounded by Defiance, Findlay, Marysville, Springfield and Greenville and also in the vicinity of Mount Gilead, Millersburg.

Meanderings

By Wash Fayette
Harold Allen, who lives over near Milledgeville, brought into the office a weather observation balloon that had been sent up by the U. S. Army—this much I know about it because it is stamped on the red paper parachute.
It is, however, one of the most elaborate of the many balloon type weather checking gadgets that have come down hereabouts and been brought into the Record-Herald office by the finders.
Unlike many of the others there was no small metal box attached to the parachute. In fact, there was nothing attached to the parachute; all of which arouses a lot of natural curiosity, especially about the parachute which, apparently, let no instruments down gently. If there had been, the army was taking a long chance on getting it back because the balloon and parachute came down out in a field where they were found by Allen just by chance.
The balloon, still fastened to the parachute, was of a good grade of tough rubber, but it was split and torn as if it had exploded when it could no longer contain the gas as it soared higher and higher into the atmosphere of lessening outside pressure.
But, interesting as the balloon and parachute are, a casual remark by Allen was much more interesting, to me at least.
He said that just before he came into Washington C. H. with the contraption, he had gone out to feed his hogs—normal procedure on any farm here.
But, what interested me was his remark that: "The birds are certainly having a tough time of it with this snow covering everything... I counted 52 pheasants and 6 quail while I was feeding the hogs this morning."
It was a casual remark, but it carried a deep meaning. Allen not only did not mention that 52 pheasants will eat a lot of grain, but he seemed to be genuinely happy that his feedlot was there to keep them from starving.
Maybe he's an ardent pheasant hunter (which I am not) and was glad to save the birds for next November's sport... but whatever, his motives, it was refreshing to know that a farmer feeding low-profit hogs did not begrudge the pheasants some grain.

Canton, Cadiz, Carrollton, Lisbon and Warren.
The late January storm which brought fresh falls of snow from Kansas to New England yesterday moved off the Northeast coast of the U. S. during the night.
The snow cover and light winds sent temperatures tumbling rapidly over most of the country east of the Mississippi River.
Southern sections, except Florida, felt the sting of the icy air as temperatures dropped to freezing in Texas and were near 32 degrees in central Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee and northern Georgia.
It was 4 degrees below zero in Vandalia, in southern Illinois, the coldest of the season. Many other areas reported lowest readings of the winter.
The northern Rockies had the most frigid weather with below zero marks. It was -24 in Big Piney, Wyo., and in Havre, Mont., the mercury plunged to -22 after yesterday's top of 6 below.

Brazil Installs New President

60 Nations Send Aides For Kubitschek's Rites

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Elected by the votes of dictator Getulio Vargas' followers and the Communists, Juscelino Kubitschek became Brazil's president today. He heads a largely conservative cabinet.
Delegates from 60 nations and members of the new Congress were in Rio for the inauguration of the 53-year-old former governor of Minas Gerais state, born in the backwoods of Brazil and the grandson of a Czech immigrant.
Vice President Richard M. Nixon headed a 17-member U. S. delegation to the inaugural ceremonies in the capital of Latin America's largest and most populous country.
Rio took on a carnival air in the midst of a 100-degree summer heat wave. The holiday atmosphere was in marked contrast to the tension three months ago, when military leaders overthrew an interim government suspected of trying to block Kubitschek's inauguration because of the support his ticket had attracted from the followers of the late dictator and the Reds.
A CONSERVATIVE himself, Kubitschek bulwarked his government by continuing in office the three service chiefs who staged the counter-coup that insured his inauguration.
In a preinaugural news conference, Kubitschek emphasized the urgent necessity for his government to expand transport, electric power and production to meet Brazil's dependence on imports and consequent shortage of foreign exchange.

Ike, Eden Study Mid-East Policy

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Eden sought today to bring U. S. and British policy closer together in the Middle East, where even slight differences are magnified by Russia's new diplomatic offensive.
Eisenhower and Eden got off to a seemingly good start yesterday on three days of talks on how to deal with the Russians in the Middle East and elsewhere.
They agreed in assessing recent Soviet maneuvering on the diplomatic, economic and political front. And Eden pledged Britain's full support to Eisenhower's insistence on "deeds, not words," as evidence of Russian willingness to ease tensions.
But the first day also turned up a divergence of views on the Middle East. Some diplomatic officials said, however, that these differences are minor and should be narrowed even further at today's session.
Eisenhower took part in two of the three U. S.-British conferences yesterday. On doctor's orders he is passing up night gatherings.
EISENHOWER and Eden are expected to switch attention to the Far East once they go as far as they can in fashioning policy toward the Middle East.
The British are said to be more reluctant than they have been about backing unyielding U. S. opposition to seating Red China in the United Nations. Eisenhower will try to nail down British support on that issue.
For their part, the British would like to ease the West's embargo against shipping nonwar goods to Red China. They argue, in the face of strong opposition from segments of Congress, that such goods are being shipped now to Russia but are banned in the China trade.

They point out that the Korean fighting, which led to the embargo, has been over for three years. Britain recognizes Red China; the U. S. does not.
The Russian economic offensive in the Middle East holds top rank among the issues before Eisenhower and Eden. But there also are questions of Britain's differences with Saudi Arabia over the potentially oil-rich Buraimi oasis, the Baghdad Pact, and the long-rankling dispute between Israel and her Arab neighbors. France's troubles with North African nationalists also drew attention.
Officials said it looked like safe speculation that the joint communiqué at the end of the Eisenhower-Eden talks probably would reaffirm the 1950 British-American-French declaration guaranteeing Middle East peace.

Farmer Gas Tax Relief Bill Passes

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House today voted 387-0 to give farmers a $60 million annual tax saving by exempting them from paying the federal tax of two cents a gallon on gasoline used on farms.
The bill now goes to the Senate.
The tax exemption applies to gasoline and special fuels used for "farming purposes," but not to fuel used on the highway.
Farmers will pay the tax when buying gasoline but can file claims with the Treasury for refunds. The claim period was set at June 30-Sept. 30 of each year, with initial refunds to be made for the first six months of this year.

Showdown Coming On Two Plans To Transfer Areas

The people of Union Township Tuesday were caught in a cross-fire of two factions of a school controversy that left them bewildered.
The turbulent situation erupted over the week end when petitions asking transfer of territory from the Miami Trace district to the Washington C. H. district were started circulating.
The first impression was that the petitions were to transfer all of Union Township to the Washington C. H. district. However, at noon Tuesday the indications were that only the transfer of contiguous territory—that is territory touching all the way.
Meanwhile, "counter petitions" were being circulated and telephone calls being made urging the people not to sign the petition.
Notes also were sent home from the school to the parents. Signed by Taylor Groff, the president of the Miami Trace district board, they said:
"There are persons now circulating Petitions asking for transfer of territory which the Miami Trace Board believes involves all of Union Township including the three school buildings—Chaffin, Eber, Wilson. The board does not desire transfer of territory by this method and believes it would be to the best interests of our school district if Citizens would refuse to sign these Petitions. The board recommends not signing. In case you might have already signed and desire to reconsider, there is a very easy way to do so: just contact Miami Trace office, phone 34451 or the principal of your particular building—Chaffin, Eber, Wilson. This must be done at once.
"Remember the three school buildings—Chaffin, Eber, Wilson are at stake!"

THE PETITIONS seeking the transfer of more territory were started after the Miami Trace and the Washington C. H. district boards had worked out a plan for the transfer of a belt of territory from the Miami Trace district to the Washington C. H. district at meetings, some separate and some joint, during the past six months.
This plan must be approved by the Fayette County Board and then by the state Board of Education.
Approval of the county board was scheduled for last Saturday, but when the board adjourned without taking action, the petitions asking the transfer of nearly all of Union Township, or as much contiguous territory as possible, were put in circulation.
Since transfer of territory from one district to another by petition may be effected only during January of the even-numbered years (January of 1956 or two years later in January of 1958) these petitions will have to be filed by midnight Tuesday.

ONE OF THE leaders of the movement said it was planned to file them with W. J. Hilty, the county superintendent and clerk of the county board, late in the afternoon.
Word from the petitioners Tuesday was that:
In a few hours time well over the required 75 percent of the voters had signed and other areas were asking that more petitions be made ready. Since so many voters are expressing an interest, it is to be regretted that an effort to reach all the township was not made in time.
A spokesman for the group said the Parents' and Taxpayers Committees, that were active in opposing the Miami Trace bond issue proposal was not back of these petitions, but the group that is backing them was not identified.
The spokesman said the petitions (Please turn to page two)

Benson Urging Meat Industry 'Tighten Costs'

Pork-Buying Program To Be Hiked, But No Stockpiling Planned

CHICAGO (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson told meat packers today "to tighten up your costs" because, he said, the farmer "is bearing more than the full brunt of price decline."
He said too the Department of Agriculture is stepping up its pork-buying program in an effort to bolster hog prices, and will do everything possible to help develop new markets abroad.
"However," he said in a speech before the National Swine Industry Committee, "we do not intend to contribute to the problems of livestock farmers by approving any program for the government to purchase and store vast quantities of meat products for which it has no visible outlet."
"We feel that this would do irreparable injury to the industry," he told packer representatives on the industry committee, which also includes producer spokesmen, that he has been "extremely concerned" because marketing margins have been rising while farm hog prices declined.

SAYING HE realizes that wage scales and freight rates have advanced, he said these higher costs have been offset in part by increased volume "and all the farmer has gotten has been low prices and sharply reduced income."
"I want to speak very bluntly with you," he said. "It is essential that marketing margins be kept in line so they do not exceed real costs and that farmers be paid as much as possible for their products."
"I urge you in industry to tighten up your costs. Keep your profits and margins in line with the historic pattern of a large-volume, small-margin industry. The livestock farmer is bearing more than the full brunt of price decline at a time when his costs are going up."
"I state emphatically that I will not stand idly by during such times without defending the farmer with every means at my disposal."

Benson's declaration came on the heels of fresh criticism in Congress of his record.
A fellow Republican, Rep. Burdick of North Dakota, fired the hottest shot yesterday when he suggested that Benson and some other members of the Eisenhower cabinet should "wear muzzles."
He declared they appear to be suffering from "foot in mouth" disease.
Demands for Benson's resignation arose last week after publication of a letter, signed with his name, applauding a magazine article which called the American farmer "our pampered tyrant."

BENSON'S APOLOGISTIC statement Friday that the letter to the editor of Harper's Magazine was a staff "boner" added to the uproar on Capitol Hill.

But Sen. Bennett (R-Utah) told the Senate yesterday that the secretary's frank acknowledgment of the error showed courage and should persuade critics to withdraw their demands that he resign.
Sen. Morse (D-Ore) said, however, that he thought the article was "a pretty accurate reflection of Benson's agricultural policy," and that he didn't propose to accept the secretary's "alibi" at its face value.

Five From Here At State Meet

Auditor's Staff At Session On Taxes

Fayette County's auditor, Harry Allen, the deputy sealer of weights and measures, Harold Hise and three clerks in the auditor's office Tuesday were in Wilmington for a meeting of auditors and their office personnel from 22 southwestern Ohio counties.

Accompanying the auditor and deputy sealer were Miss Marie Marchant, Mrs. David C. Coppock and Mrs. William Robinson, all clerks in the office.

The purpose of the meeting, Allen explained, was to get first-hand explanations from the experts on the collection of taxes that provide one-third of all the income for local governments.

Heading the list of experts at the meeting was Stanley J. Bowers, the state tax commissioner. Five of his top aids were with him.

Of immediate interest to the five from the Fayette County auditor's office, Allen said before they left, was the collection of the personal property tax.

FOR THE most part, collection of this tax will be merely a routine matter this year — with one exception, the tax on grain stored under government loan.

This has been the center of a turbulent controversy, especially in Fayette County, for the last year.

Since 1952 the stored grain has not been listed for personal property tax. About a year ago, the state Department of Taxation sent word that the tax would have to be paid and then sent a representative here to check on the unpaid grain taxes.

The tax is levied at the rate of the taxing district in which the wheat is stored, so, Allen said, "the whole thing has been pretty confusing."

An amendment to the law concerning the tax on stored grain was passed by the Legislature. Spearheading the group that sponsored the amendment was Rep. Virgil Perrill of Fayette County.

That amendment, Rev. Perrill said, was designed to abolish the tax on stored grain.

However, the state Tax Department has notified county auditors that they must collect the tax this year.

Auditor Allen said he felt he should abide by those instructions and collect the tax, but added that, because of the complexities regarding the collection of it, he hoped to find out more of the procedures at the Wilmington meeting.

It was emphasized at the auditor's office that the listing of personal property for taxation does not start until Feb. 15 and that the period for paying this tax ends on March 31.

School Transfer

"(1) The voters desire that the high school pupils whom they represent attend Washington C. H. High School on a permanent basis and (2) the voters use this means of expressing hope for a county-city school system which can offer us better education at less cost than two separate systems. The voters represented here feel that all our children deserve the best education we can offer regardless of where they happen to live."

"The petitions are evidence of the disapproval of the voters of the Miami Trace Board's secret offer to give away one-third of the school tax of Union Township in order to eliminate certain voters. The area around Washington C. H. was offered the Washington County debt free, the debt to be spread over the rest of the district. The signers object to such a "deal" when the Miami Trace Board is getting ready to ask a huge building and remodeling bond issue.

"A strong protest against the high cost of supervision is registered in the petitions: two superintendents, two boards of education (who obviously can't agree), two clerks and two offices to be maintained, and one of each of these services in the city schools, when one superintendent and board could supervise a combined Fayette County — Washington school system could certainly do the job more economically and better."

A joint statement issued by the Miami Trace and the Washington C. H. boards outlined the negotiations that resulted in the plan to transfer territory. The statement was signed by Robert Terhune, president of the Washington C. H. board, Taylor Groff, president of the Miami Trace board and W. J. Hilty, although he is the superintendent of the county school system, but not an elected member of the county school board, which has the final say-so on the transfer recommendation to the state board for final approval.

The joint statement said: "At the suggestion of the County Board of Education and the County Superintendent of Schools, a series of meetings beginning in December, 1955, was held by representatives from the city and Miami Trace Boards of Education to discuss the transfer of territory from the Miami Trace District to the City District. All participants, including the County Board and the County Superintendent, have been sincere and honest in their efforts to reach an equitable agreement.

"After a series of compromises, an unanimous decision was reached that certain territories immediately adjacent to the corporate limits should become a part of the Washington Court House school district. A map outlining these territories was jointly prepared. This map and the proposal was presented to the County Board which has the sole authority to transfer school districts, or parts thereof, under the authority of Section 3311.23 of the Revised General Code of Ohio.

"This transfer of territory has nothing to do with the extension of the City corporation lines — it involves the school district lines only. "The valuation of all taxable property within the territory under discussion will amount about $14,000, per pupil, which very closely approximates the average per pupil valuation in the entire Miami Trace District, and is in excess of the per pupil valuation in the City District.

"About 135 elementary pupils reside in the territory being transferred, but these pupils will continue to attend the Miami Trace District schools on a tuition basis until the city District can get approval and complete its proposed building program.

"High school pupils residing in the transferred territory will be attending on a tuition-free basis; and those residing outside the transferred territory who have been attending Washington High School will continue to attend on a tuition basis until the proposed Miami Trace building program can be approved and completed.

"It is the opinion of the boards that this solution is the most equitable way of handling the school problems of the rural and urban

Five From Here At State Meet

Auditor's Staff At
Session On Taxes

Fayette County's auditor, Harry Allen, the deputy sealer of weights and measures, Harold Hise and three clerks in the auditor's office Tuesday were in Wilmington for a meeting of auditors and their office personnel from 22 southwestern Ohio counties.

Accompanying the auditor and deputy sealer were Miss Marie Marchant, Mrs. David C. Poppo and Mrs. William Robinson, all clerks in the office.

The purpose of the meeting, Allen explained, was to get first-hand explanations from the experts on the collection of taxes that provide one-third of all the income for local governments.

Heading the list of experts at the meeting was Stanley J. Bowers, the state tax commissioner. Five of his top aids were with him.

Of immediate interest to the five from the Fayette County auditor's office, Allen said before they left, was the collection of the personal property tax.

FOR THE most part, collection of this tax will be merely a routine matter this year — with one exception, the tax on grain stored under government loan.

This has been the center of a turbulent controversy, especially in Fayette County, for the last year.

Since 1952 the stored grain has not been listed for personal property tax. About a year ago, the state Department of Taxation sent word that the tax would have to be paid and then sent a representative here to check on the unpaid grain taxes.

The tax is levied at the rate of the taxing district in which the wheat is stored, so, Allen said "the whole thing has been pretty confusing."

An amendment to the law concerning the tax on stored grain was passed by the Legislature. Spearheading the group that sponsored the amendment was Rep. Virgil Perrill of Fayette County.

That amendment, Rev. Perrill said, was designed to abolish the tax on stored grain.

However, the state Tax Department has notified county auditors that they must collect the tax this year.

Auditor Allen said he felt he should abide by those instructions and collect the tax, but added that, because of the complexities regarding the collection of it, he hoped to find out more of the procedures at the Wilmington meeting.

It was emphasized at the auditor's office that the listing of personal property for taxation does not start until Feb. 15 and that the period for paying this tax ends on March 31.

School Transfer

"(1) The voters desire that the high school pupils whom they represent attend Washington C. H. High School on a permanent basis and (2) the voters use this means of expressing hope for a county-city school system which can offer us better education at less cost than two separate systems. The voters represented here feel that all our children deserve the best education we can offer regardless of where they happen to live."

"The petitions are evidence of the disapproval of the voters of the Miami Trace Board's secret offer to give away one-third of the school tax of Union Township in order to eliminate certain voters. The area around Washington C. H. was offered the Washington board debt free, the debt to be spread over the rest of the district. The signers object to such a "deal" when the Miami Trace Board is getting ready to ask a huge building and remodeling bond issue.

"A strong protest against the high cost of supervision is registered in the petitions: two superintendents, two boards of education (who obviously can't agree), two clerks and two offices to be maintained, and one of each of these services in the city schools, when one superintendent and board could supervise a combined Fayette County — Washington school system could certainly do the job more economically and better."

A joint statement issued by the Miami Trace and the Washington C. H. boards outlined the negotiations that resulted in the plan to transfer territory. The statement was signed by Robert Terhune, president of the Washington C. H. board, Taylor Groff, president of the Miami Trace board and W. J. Hilty, although he is the superintendent of the county school system, but not an elected member of the county school board, which has the final say-so on the transfer recommendation to the state board for final approval.

The joint statement said: "At the suggestion of the County Board of Education and the County Superintendent of Schools, a series of meetings beginning in December, 1955, was held by representatives from the city and Miami Trace Boards of Education to discuss the transfer of territory from the Miami Trace District to the City District. All participants, including the County Board and the County Superintendent, have been sincere and honest in their efforts to reach an equitable agreement."

"After a series of compromises, an unanimous decision was reached that certain territories immediately adjacent to the corporate limits should become a part of the Washington Court House school district. A map outlining these territories was jointly prepared. This map and the proposal was presented to the County Board which has the sole authority to transfer school districts, or parts thereof, under the authority of Section 3311.23 of the Revised General Code of Ohio."

"This transfer of territory has nothing to do with the extension of the City corporation lines — it involves the school district lines only."

"The valuation of all taxable property within the territory under discussion will amount about $14,000, per pupil, which very closely approximates the average per pupil valuation in the entire Miami Trace District, and is in excess of the per pupil valuation in the City District."

"About 135 elementary pupils reside in the territory being transferred, but these pupils will continue to attend the Miami Trace District schools on a tuition basis until the city District can get approval and complete its proposed building program."

"High school pupils residing in the transferred territory will be attending on a tuition-free basis; and those residing outside the transferred territory who have been attending Washington High School will continue to attend on a tuition basis until the proposed Miami Trace building program can be approved and completed."

"It is the opinion of the boards that this solution is the most equitable way of handling the school problems of the rural and urban

Former Resident's Funeral Is Held

Mr. Judy died unexpectedly at his home, at 4011 Middlehurst Lane, Dayton, Thursday.

He formerly resided in Springfield before moving to Dayton.

He served in the last World War and is survived by his widow, Rita Mae, an adopted daughter, Carol Ann, and a step-son, Tommy, at home; two sons, David Lee and Michael Dale, both of New Mexico; one brother, Bert of East St. Louis, Ill.; three sisters, Mrs. Gertrude Riley of Springfield, Mrs. Opal Rockfield of Columbus, O., and Mrs. Nora Mae Horgeshimer of Portsmouth, R. I., two nieces and three nephews.

territories. Each will now be able to take care of its own needs.

"Aside from the material things accomplished by this move, it is significant that the Boards of Education, Miami Trace, City, and County are working together in solving some of the educational problems of the city and rural areas."

Divorce Granted After Life In Cave

DENVER (P)—Judge Joseph E. Cook dissolved a 15-year marriage Monday after Mrs. Marion Ellis, worth Woodmansee, 32, testified her husband, 33, had forced her to live in a cave inhabited by snakes. "Snakes were crawling all over the place," she said. "They crawled over the back of the cupboard and my nerves broke when they crawled over the baby."

Two years ago, Ohio put out more than three million checks advertising the 150th anniversary of the founding of Ohio University.

Tax Man Here To Lend Hand

Public Is Warned Of Phony Agents

To prove they're not really nasty, the Internal Revenue Service authorities provided a bit of a pain soother for Fayette County residents with income tax headaches. Arthur Cochran of the federal tax office in Wilmington was available Monday and Tuesday at the Chamber of Commerce offices here, 125 1/2 North Fayette Street, to aid taxpayers with returns.

Cochran will also be available for consultation Feb. 13, 14 and 15 and April 12, 13 and 16.

Russell A. Welch, district director of the Internal Revenue Service, pointed out that taxpayers with problems "will receive more prompt attention by preparing as much of his return as possible and by not waiting until the last minute."

The preparation of income tax returns by revenue agents is restricted generally to persons who are illiterate, physically incapable or otherwise unable to prepare their own returns, according to Welch.

But Cochran will be available again to answer questions and supply necessary assistance to muddled taxpayers.

THE PEOPLE of Fayette County who annually submit tax returns after much fevered effort were given further cause for fretting this year. The government office which used to advise taxpayers on their problems was closed.

Besides the burden of taxes, the public was warned by Welch of another possible trouble-maker which might be even more painful than taxes.

He cautioned that phony tax agents "with a high-velocity gift of gab" are operating in Columbus, Springfield, Dayton and Toledo, bilking the small businessman.

In most of the cases, says Welch, the impersonator demands to see the books of the businessman, then claims a certain amount is owed in taxes.

He tries to collect in cash, without giving a receipt.

The phony carry official-looking briefcases and various tax forms, all available to the public. They have not presented credentials thus far, according to Welch.

A genuine government tax agent will show as identification a brown leather folder with the treasury seal on the outside and his picture and signature inside.

Welch added that the Internal Revenue service or the Federal Bureau of Investigation should be notified if suspicious tax collectors appear in this area.

Overdue Book Fine Adds Up To $975

LINCOLN, Neb. (P) — Charles F. Horner of Mission, Kan., has found that an overdue copy of "Frankenstein" built him up a fearful bill.

He sent the book to the University of Nebraska library Monday, saying it came into his possession in 1899 when he was a student.

"I cannot say it's possession was unknown to me and on some occasions when I wanted to return it I couldn't find it. At last, I have found the little book and I am deeply ashamed," he wrote.

Then he offered to make restitution.

University officials figured a fine of $975 was due.

They wrote Horner to "forget it."

Bungling Bandits Slated For Hearing

MARION, Ohio (P) — Three Marion youths will be arraigned here tomorrow on charges of kidnaping, conspiracy to kidnap and bank robbery. The three were indicted on the multiple charges yesterday.

They are Duane Charles Packer, 26, Willard Lee Ciola, 20, and Donald Francis Kimberling, 23, charged with an unsuccessful attempt to rob the National City Bank of Marion Jan. 22.

Held hostage in their home during the attempted robbery were assistant bank cashier Ralph C. Hurr, his wife, Alma, both 66, and Mrs. Hurr's mother, Mrs. Carolyn Susler. Mrs. Hurr died later of a heart attack.

Historical Society Here Wants Old Photographs

The Fayette County Historical Society wants old and historical photographs and pictures for preserving in the projected Fayette County Museum.

This appeal went out today from the President George Pensyl, and Secretary B. E. Kelley, after it was learned that some valuable historical photographs which should have been preserved for posterity had been destroyed.

The appeal also was made after two recent contributions were made to the Society, both of which are noteworthy.

One of these was from Henry (Bud) Brownell and consisted of 31 excellent photographs of the memorable cyclone here on Sept. 8, 1885. They depict the almost unbelievable damage caused by the terrific storm which laid waste a strip across western Fayette County, wrecked a section of the city, and caused several deaths and in juring many.

Another collection of photographs given to the society a few days ago, consists of several dozen circus pictures, chiefly on the Hagenback Wallace Circus. They were made in 1914, when a score or more Washington C. H. men were with that and other circuses.

This was presented by Jack Kennedy, city, former circus man who spent several years with the big circuses. With other local circus men, he compiled the wonderful collection of photographs carried in the large album.

HISTORICAL Society officials are convinced that there are many old and rare photographs bearing on the history of Fayette County up to the present time which may be destroyed unless placed where they will be cared for.

The Historical Society is seeking gifts of such photographs and pictures and either the president or secretary may be contacted regarding them by letter, telephone, or in person.

Until the museum is opened, the photographs will be carefully packed and stored, with the name of the donor on each picture, and a permanent record made of the pictures, name of donor and when given.

Already the Historical Society has dozens of old pictures which can never be replaced. They tell a story of how things were and what happened in bygone days.

Historical Society officials point out that rare and interesting photographs will be one of the many features of the Fayette County Museum when it is formally opened after the present indebtedness is wiped out and an operating fund established.

3 Drinking Deaths Target For Probe

CANTON, Ohio (P) — Coroner Eugene B. Mozes said he would analyze today a fluid three men may have drunk before their deaths.

Killed yesterday after a drinking spree were:

Richard Penick, 27, of Minerva, the father of five children; William Penick, 31, of Rt. 1, Paris, Richard's brother, and William E. Thompson, 63, William's father-in-law.

Mrs. William Penick said her father and husband had been drinking heavily the last few weeks and "would drink anything they could get hold of." She said she would not be surprised if the men drained the alcohol out of a farm tractor radiator.

She turned over to police liquid the men may have been drinking. The coroner said he would make a thorough analysis.

New Ohio Checks Advertise Seaway

COLUMBUS (P) — Checks issued by the state in paying its obligations now feature a new design advertising the coming St. Lawrence Seaway as "Ohio's new frontier."

The design shows an outline map of Ohio and Lake Erie with a freighter steaming into the state. The St. Lawrence Seaway will open the Great Lakes to larger ocean-going vessels.

Two years ago, Ohio put out more than three million checks advertising the 150th anniversary of the founding of Ohio University.

Tax Man Here To Lend Hand

Public Is Warned Of Phony Agents

To prove they're not really nasty, the Internal Revenue Service authorities provided a bit of a pain soother for Fayette County residents with income tax headaches.

Arthur Cochran of the federal tax office in Wilmington was available Monday and Tuesday at the Chamber of Commerce offices here, 125 1/2 North Fayette Street, to aid taxpayers with returns.

Cochran will also be available for consultation Feb. 13, 14 and 15 and April 12, 13 and 16.

Russell A. Welch, district director of the Internal Revenue Service, pointed out that taxpayers with problems "will receive more prompt attention by preparing as much of his return as possible and by not waiting until the last minute."

The preparation of income tax returns by revenue agents is restricted generally to persons who are illiterate, physically incapable or otherwise unable to prepare their own returns, according to Welch.

But Cochran will be available again to answer questions and supply necessary assistance to included taxpayers.

THE PEOPLE of Fayette County who annually submit tax returns after much fevered effort were given further cause for fretting this year. The government office which used to advise taxpayers on their problems was closed.

Besides the burden of taxes, the public was warned by Welch of another possible trouble-maker which might be even more painful than taxes.

He cautioned that phony tax agents "with a high-velocity gift of gab" are operating in Columbus, Springfield, Dayton and Toledo, bilking the small businessman.

In most of the cases, says Welch, the impersonator demands to see the books of the businessman, then claims a certain amount is owed in taxes.

He tries to collect in cash, without giving a receipt.

The phones carry official-looking briefcases and various tax forms, all available to the public. They have not presented credentials thus far, according to Welch.

A genuine government tax agent will show as identification a brown leather folder with the treasury seal on the outside and his picture and signature inside.

Welch added that the Internal Revenue Service or the Federal Bureau of Investigation should be notified if suspicious tax collectors appear in this area.

Overdue Book Fine Adds Up To $975

LINCOLN, Neb. (P)—Charles F. Horner of Mission, Kan., has found that an overdue copy of "Frankenstein" built him up a fearful bill.

He sent the book to the University of Nebraska library Monday, saying it came into his possession in 1899 when he was a student.

"I cannot say it's possession was unknown to me and on some occasions when I wanted to return it I couldn't find it. At last, I have found the little book and I am deeply ashamed," he wrote.

Then he offered to make restitution.

University officials figured a fine of $975 was due.

They wrote Horner to "forget it."

Bungling Bandits Slated For Hearing

MARION, Ohio (P)—Three Marion youths will be arraigned here tomorrow on charges of kidnaping, conspiracy to kidnap and bank robbery. The three were indicted on the multiple charges yesterday.

They are Duane Charles Packer, 26, Willard Lee Ciola, 20, and Donald Francis Kimberling, 23, charged with an unsuccessful attempt to rob the National City Bank of Marion Jan. 22.

Held hostage in their home during the attempted robbery were assistant bank cashier Ralph C. Hurr, his wife, Alma, both 66, and Mrs. Hurr's mother, Mrs. Carolyn Susler. Mrs. Hurr died later of a heart attack.

Historical Society Here Wants Old Photographs

The Fayette County Historical Society wants old and historical photographs and pictures for preserving in the projected Fayette County Museum.

This appeal went out today from the President George Pensyl, and Secretary B. E. Kelley, after it was learned that some valuable historical photographs which should have been preserved for posterity had been destroyed.

The appeal also was made after two recent contributions were made to the Society, both of which are noteworthy.

One of these was from Henry (Bud) Brownell and consisted of 31 excellent photographs of the memorable cyclone here on Sept. 8, 1885. They depict the almost unbelievable damage caused by the terrific storm which laid waste a strip across western Fayette County, wrecked a section of the city, and caused several deaths and injuries many.

Another collection of photographs given to the society a few days ago, consists of several dozen circus pictures, chiefly on the Hagenback-Wallace Circus. They were made in 1914, when a score or more Washington C. H. men were with that and other circuses.

This was presented by Jack Kennedy, city, former circus man who spent several years with the big circuses. With other local circus men, he compiled the wonderful collection of photographs carried in the large album.

HISTORICAL Society officials are convinced that there are many old and rare photographs bearing on the history of Fayette County up to the present time which may be destroyed unless placed where they will be cared for.

The Historical Society is seeking gifts of such photographs and pictures and either the president or secretary may be contacted regarding them by letter, telephone, or in person.

Until the museum is opened, the photographs will be carefully packed and stored, with the name of the donor on each picture, and a permanent record made of the pictures, name of donor and when given.

Already the Historical Society has dozens of old pictures which can never be replaced. They tell a story of how things were and what happened in bygone days.

Historical Society officials point out that rare and interesting photographs will be one of the many features of the Fayette County Museum when it is formally opened after the present indebtedness is wiped out and an operating fund established.

3 Drinking Deaths Target For Probe

CANTON, Ohio (P)—Coroner Eugene B. Mozes said he would analyze today a fluid three men may have drunk before their deaths.

Killed yesterday after a drinking spree were:

Richard Penick, 27, of Minerva, the father of five children; William Penick, 31, of Rt. 1, Paris, Richard's brother, and William E. Thompson, 63, William's father-in-law.

Mrs. William Penick said her father and husband had been drinking heavily the last few weeks and "would drink anything they could get hold of." She said she would not be surprised if the men drained the alcohol out of a farm tractor radiator.

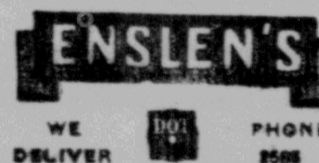

She turned over to police liquid the men may have been drinking. The coroner said he would make a thorough analysis.

One Phase Of Farm Support Draws Attention

Discussion continues, and will go on, concerning the farm problem, until there is definite action by Congress to make some changes in present laws.

Interest in this community and elsewhere in Ohio is now centered on the farm program changes proposed by President Eisenhower for inducing farmers voluntarily to remove acreage from production and deposit it in a national "soil bank."

However, of equal importance is the recommendation that Congress limit the amount of cash an individual farmer may collect under the federal price support program. Right now some farmers can, and often do, qualify for a huge sum in parity payments.

Under the present setup, one-fourth of all government subsidies are paid to only two percent of America's 5,000,000 farmers, while another fourth goes to just nine percent. In other words, 11 percent of the nation's farmers every year get half the money Congress sets aside to insure the prosperity of the country's basic industry.

The latest and most comprehensive study of this subject brings to light instances where a few farmers, no more than five or six in a state, often clear millions of dollars every year in federal payments.

The situation is not new. Federal parity support programs have always favored "corporation" farmers. Why Congress has never done anything about it perhaps illustrates the weakness of legislators faced with the task of bucking powerful, free-spending lobbyists.

Now the issue is out in the open, and Congressmen can rely on the sturdy support of the Eisenhower administration in placing a ceiling on federal subsidies paid to bigtime farm operators. Certainly a man who can collect a million dollars on one cotton crop, for example, needs no financial help from Washington.

Boss Prefers 'Happy Shop'

By Hal Boyle

JERSEY CITY, N. J. (AP)—Many an old-time industrial leader thought he did a workman a favor by keeping him on the payroll.

This breed of boss is rapidly vanishing from the American scene. He is being replaced by executives who recognize that employee loyalty is a keystone in any successful business if it is to endure.

A leading spokesman of the "happy shop" principle in industry today is Frank G. Atkinson.

Atkinson, whose weak eyes forced him to give up his dream of becoming a professional baseball player, took a $4 a week job at 15 with the Joseph Dixon Crucible Co. here. Now at 57 he heads the firm, one of the nation's largest manufacturers of pencils, crucibles and industrial graphite plants.

During his steady rise from office boy to president, Atkinson, who comes from a long line of Methodist ministers, developed a conviction that the Golden Rule was as important in industry as it was in religious life.

"Business is people," he said. "The dignity of the individual worker is important. But applying the Golden Rule isn't merely good business. It's the only way to live."

Atkinson takes it almost as a personal blow when any of his 2,000 odd employees quit, and few do.

"One of the greatest loss factors borne by industry today is traceable to a high rate in personnel turnover," he said. "A management which does not realize that will not succeed."

But how can a management avoid losing its skilled employees and escape the expense of training new ones?

Atkinson feels it should pay wages "as high as the business will stand," schedule the work so as to avoid layoffs, install profit-sharing programs and pension, medical aid and insurance plans.

"But above all, know the value of a buck," he continued. "There is much more to keeping people than just the amount you pay them or the extra benefits they get. They have to be recognized, to feel that they themselves are essential to the success of the business."

"Before we go outside to bring someone in to fill an important post, we look over everyone on the payroll to see if we can't find one who can be advanced within the organization."

"We encourage our people to study and prepare for a better job. We sometimes even pay their tuition."

The incentive program seems to have paid off. The 129-year-old firm never has had a strike. When outside interests threatened to get financial control of the company several years ago the employees bought stock themselves and prevented it.

"About 40 per cent of the employees now own stock," Atkinson said. "We think that's a good thing, but we don't campaign for it."

Atkinson feels opportunity has never been greater in industry, that it has never been easier to get good business training. But it worries him that many young men today prefer the security of a safe job with seniority to the risks, challenges and rewards of management.

"They ought to knock that spirit out of their heads," he said. "It isn't the American idea merely to look for something safe and easy."

"Business isn't work. It's a game. Maybe we ought to find another word for hard work."

"Nothing you're really interested in is work. What is happiness anyway? When you become so interested in your job you are unconscious of the passing of time, you are truly happy."

The New Life May Come Anytime

By George Sokolsky

We are all products of our little environments, no matter how big we may appear to ourselves and in the celebrity columns. Suddenly I have been removed from the world of great affairs, where I dealt every day with men and women who make history, to a little, drab, hospital room. Suddenly I ceased to be a man of action and became a cabbage.

Now that is a new and different world, like going to a far country to see strange people. And the people are strange. I think of the three nurses whose sole function in life is to attend to me. They do not know me. They are neither kith nor kin. It surely is not the money that makes such a job attractive—a combination of scullery maid and psychologist, of cleaning woman, masseuse, scrubber, bathers, nurse—what task does not a nurse perform? She becomes the constant companion for eight long hours, monitor of your conduct, guardian of your life, protector against your frailties.

If one were to state clearly what this vocation is, it would have to be described as a professional mother, caring for all kinds and descriptions of strangers who suddenly become precious because they are put in her charge. These women, I must ask myself, do such things, as one would never dare ask to be done for him; yet it is all done so willingly, so gayly, so dedicatedly.

To me, who have known no illness in recent years, nurses have been items on the bill. But this time when the need is so desperate for special attention, I cannot help but realize that the essence of recovery is in this gracious and, in a measure, gratuitous service that in the end can know no reward but "thank you."

I hear constantly on the radio appeals for young ladies to join this service and there is apparently a shortage of nurses as there is a shortage of so many professional persons in this country. We shall either have to adjust our wage scales to make these services more attractive or we shall have to discover some other means to bring more girls to this dedication. And that, of course, is our problem. One cannot teach dedication in a college, any more than one can teach patriotism or respect. These are qualities of the heart and mind and not subjects for curriculum.

A technician can be taught how to siphon off blood with as little pain as a needle will make, but no technician can remove the great fear that this is the end. And yet, an old nurse, who has never seen the inside of a college or perhaps a book, can tell of a hundred cases worse than yours, jabbering away, with half-sentence and half-fiction and somehow creating an atmosphere of whole truth and high hope. It is a God-given quality which every mother has for her own and only nurses have for whoever becomes a charge upon their sympathy.

And so, I live these days with these three women, but the night one only sits and watches. I fall asleep and there she is, keeping guard lest I fall into the styx whence there is no return. That she does little things for me, I know when I awaken, but hers must be a difficult ministry, watching eternally, everlastingly watching lest some normality

Exercise Prescribed For Broken Shoulder

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

With virtually everyone conscious of snow and ice these days, it's probably a good time to discuss a very painful ailment, the frozen shoulder.

Despite its name, this ailment, of course, has nothing to do with the winter weather. Technically, it's called chronic adhesive periarthritis of the shoulder.

Extremely Painful

It might be started by a fall or by throwing a baseball or some other object. Over a period of time, sometimes years, it gradually becomes worse. Eventually, bands of scar tissue are formed and any movement of the shoulder is extremely painful.

While your doctor may recommend specific treatment, he'll probably also advise a few stretching exercises.

At first, these exercises will be painful. If your shoulder trouble is in the advanced stage, your physician probably will have to help you perform them. If it isn't, you may be able to tolerate the initial pain and continue with the movements by yourself.

Simple Exercise

Before explaining some simple exercises, let me emphasize that you shouldn't try them without approval of your doctor.

Here are exercises that doctors often recommend:

With your painful arm, grasp

a firmly anchored object like a strap or rope fastened to the top of a doorway. Using your good arm as an aid, lift your ailing arm as high as possible and take a firm hold. Then squat as much as pain will permit, placing your weight on the extended arm. Repeat this 10 or 15 times every half hour.

Behind Back

Another exercise is to grasp your ailing arm behind your back with your good hand and pull it as far up your back as possible. Do this 10 to 12 times every half hour.

A third exercise is to grasp the hand of the painful arm with your other hand behind your head. Then slowly, move the elbow of your painful arm forward and then back to a side position again. This can be done 10 to 20 times each 30 minutes.

You'll be surprised how quickly these exercises can improve your arm movements.

The Nation Today

James Marlow

Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—Do some of the voices and even the words sound familiar? They do. You've been through this before: the wondering whether President Eisenhower will be a candidate.

It was only a little over four years ago that politicians were predicting Eisenhower would or wouldn't be a candidate. Eisenhower himself kept everybody guessing.

It wasn't until Jan. 7, 1952, that he said he was a Republican. That same day he indicated he'd run. It's now a few weeks later in this presidential election year and Eisenhower hasn't said whether he'll seek a second term.

In November 1951, Sen. Bridges (R-NH) said Eisenhower should say soon whether he was available. In December 1955 Bridges was saying Eisenhower should say whether he's available this time.

In October 1955 Senator Ives (R-NY) said he was confident Eisenhower would run. This month Ives was saying he was confident Eisenhower would run.

In September 1951, Sen. Duff (R-Pa) said he was "very confident" Eisenhower would accept the Republican nomination. This month Duff said he "very confidently" thinks Eisenhower will try again.

In Eisenhower's own case there are some similarities and some contrasts.

In 1951 and early 1952 Eisenhower, then supreme commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, was remembered as the man who had said a lifetime soldier has no place in politics.

But on Jan. 7, 1952, he dropped that position and said he would accept a "clear-cut call to political duty." This month he said he wished the American people could point out "my clear duty" in deciding on running again.

In 1948 when Eisenhower really didn't want to be a political candidate, he made it known he did not want his name entered in the New Hampshire presidential primary.

In 1952, when he had changed his mind and his name was placed in that same state's primary, he avoided a yes or no but said, "Of course, there is no question of the right of American citizens to organize in pursuit of their common convictions."

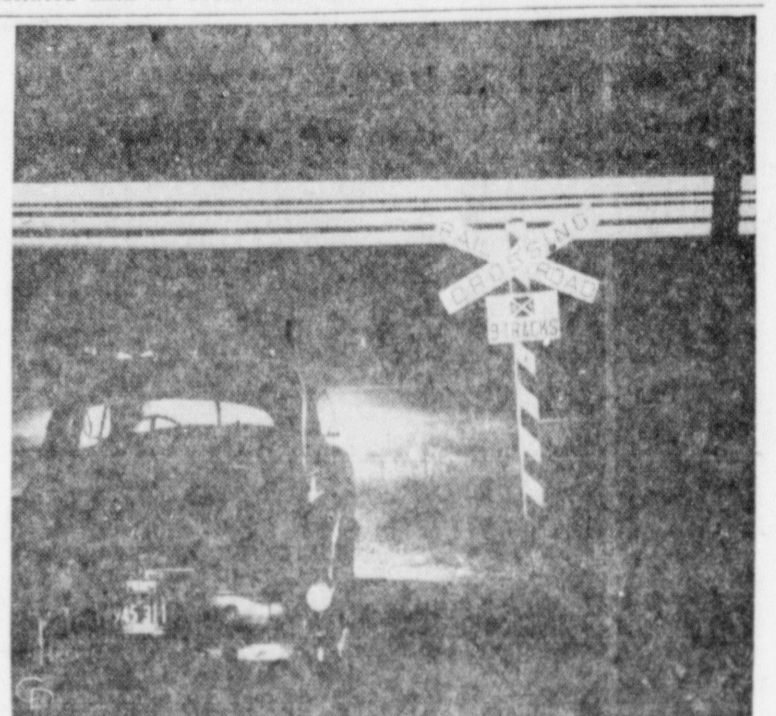

This year, when his name again was entered in the New Hampshire primary, he didn't object but said,

"Freedom to select, nominate and elect a candidate to public office is basic to our American political system."

There is a big difference between now and 1952. Then he hesitated until he could hear what Republicans in general had to say about his running.

This time Republicans in general are anxious to have him but, because of his heart attack, he waits to hear what his doctors have to say about his running.

A technician can be taught how to siphon off blood with as little pain as a needle will make, but no technician can remove the great fear that this is the end. And yet, an old nurse, who has never seen the inside of a college or perhaps a book, can tell of a hundred cases worse than yours, jabbering away, with half-science and half-fiction and somehow creating an atmosphere of whole truth and high hope. It is a God-given quality which every mother has for her own and only nurses have for whoever becomes a charge upon their sympathy.

And so, I live these days with these three women, but the night one only sits and watches. I fall asleep and there she is, keeping guard lest I fall into the styx whence there is no return. That she does little things for me, I know when I awaken, but hers must be a difficult ministry, watching eternally, everlastingly watching lest some normality

Diet and Health Exercise Prescribed For Broken Shoulder

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

With virtually everyone conscious of snow and ice these days, it's probably a good time to discuss a very painful ailment, the frozen shoulder.

Despite its name, this ailment, of course, has nothing to do with the winter weather. Technically, it's called chronic adhesive periarthritis of the shoulder.

Extremely Painful

It might be started by a fall or by throwing a baseball or some other object. Over a period of time, sometimes years, it gradually becomes worse. Eventually, bands of scar tissue are formed and any movement of the shoulder is extremely painful.

While your doctor may recommend specific treatment, he'll probably also advise a few stretching exercises.

At first, these exercises will be painful. If your shoulder trouble is in the advanced stage, your physician probably will have to help you perform them. If it isn't, you may be able to tolerate the initial pain and continue with the movements by yourself.

Simple Exercise

Before explaining some simple exercises, let me emphasize that you shouldn't try them without approval of your doctor.

Here are exercises that doctors often recommend:

With your painful arm, grasp

a firmly anchored object like a strap or rope fastened to the top of a doorway. Using your good arm as an aid, lift your ailing arm as high as possible and take a firm hold. Then squat as much as pain will permit, placing your weight on the extended arm. Repeat this 10 to 15 times every half hour.

Behind Back

Another exercise is to grasp your ailing arm behind your back with your good hand and pull it as far up your back as possible. Do this 10 to 12 times every half hour.

A third exercise is to grasp the hand of the painful arm with your other hand behind your head. Then slowly, move the elbow of your painful arm forward and then back to a side position again. This can be done 10 to 20 times each 30 minutes.

You'll be surprised how quickly these exercises can improve your arm movements.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Do some of the voices and even the words sound familiar? They do. You've been through this before: the wondering whether President Eisenhower will be a candidate.

It was only a little over four years ago that politicians were predicting Eisenhower would or wouldn't be a candidate. Eisenhower himself kept everybody guessing.

It wasn't until Jan. 7, 1952, that he said he was a Republican. That same day he indicated he'd run. It's now a few weeks later in this presidential election year and Eisenhower hasn't said whether he'll seek a second term.

In November 1951, Sen. Bridges (R-NH) said Eisenhower should say soon whether he was available. In December 1955 Bridges was saying Eisenhower should say whether he's available this time.

In October 1955 Senator Ives (R-NY) said he was confident Eisenhower would run. This month Ives was saying he was confident Eisenhower would run.

In September 1951, Sen. Duff (R-Pa) said he was "very confident" Eisenhower would accept the Republican nomination. This month Duff said he "very confidently" thinks Eisenhower will try again.

In Eisenhower's own case there are some similarities and some contrasts.

In 1951 and early 1952 Eisenhower, then supreme commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, was remembered as the man who had said a lifetime soldier had no place in politics.

But on Jan. 7, 1952, he dropped that position and said he would accept a "clear-cut call to political duty." This month he said he wished the American people could point out "my clear duty" in deciding on running again.

In 1948 when Eisenhower really didn't want to be a political candidate, he made it known he did not want his name entered in the New Hampshire presidential primary.

In 1952, when he had changed his mind and his name was placed in that same state's primary, he avoided a yes or no but said, "Of course, there is no question of the right of American citizens to organize in pursuit of their common convictions."

This year, when his name again was entered in the New Hampshire primary, he didn't object but said,

"Freedom to select, nominate and elect a candidate to public office is basic to our American political system."

There is a big difference between now and 1952. Then he hesitated until he could hear what Republicans in general had to say about his running.

This time Republicans in general are anxious to have him but, because of his heart attack, he waits to hear what his doctors have to say about his running.

Has America Lost Its Lead In Cold War?

Foreign News Expert
Analyzes Soviet Moves
In Recent Years

Editor's Note: Has America lost the initiative in the cold war, or is it just running scared? Seeking the answer to this question, William L. Ryan, foreign news analyst for the Associated Press, studies the Russian position over a period of years. Following is the first in a series of three articles.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

The Soviet Union has led the world to believe it has challenged the world leadership of the United States. It is a long way from making the challenge stick.

With spectacular ventures Kremlin leaders, particularly in the Middle East and Asia, have created the impression in many minds that they have seized the offensive and are holding the initiative.

There are facts of life, however, that even the collective Soviet leadership must face. Barring a catastrophic economic collapse in the West, the U.S.S.R. is by its own reckoning at least 10 years away from the fundamental goals that they have set for themselves and are holding the initiative.

Soviet strategic planning on the home front encompasses 10 to 15 years. In that period, despite a continuing necessity for bold and conspicuous maneuvers, the Russians likely will cautiously avoid moves entailing the risk of blundering into world war. In a decade many things can happen, particularly in Soviet internal development.

That may be the period of grace for the free world to wage another kind of modern warfare on a political-economic battlefield. And free world policy may have the opportunity to bring mankind to the brink of peace.

This is an election year in the United States, complicating the conduct of foreign policy. But it is a difficult year in the U.S.S.R. too. The 20th congress of the Soviet Communist party opens Feb. 14. It will have to examine the new Moscow approach to foreign policy, to repeat fundamentals of the internal party line and the line for Communists abroad. It must nail down the policy of "all for heavy industry," which means progress without abundance. It may even clarify leadership questions.

Behind the scenes in Washington, there seems much thinking on these lines:

1. The United States is often criticized by its friends, abused by the uncommitted and badgered by its enemies. But its policies over the cold war years have built a firm foundation for the job of waging peace.

2. Instead of dismay, the new Soviet ventures into the economic aid arena should bring cheers from the free world. The U.S.S.R. made a big splash in 1955, but its actual investment in the welfare of other nations has been infinitesimal in comparison with that of the United States.

3. A prospective standoff in a few years in nuclear weapons can promote peace if it is accompanied by a determined drive on the social-economic side to meet and turn back Red challenges. Coupled with this would be a campaign to jog short memories and arouse moral indignation at the record of Soviet communism. The means for these drives exist. The method seems yet to be determined.

So long as the Russians are beset with vast economic problems, the over-all initiative in this shadow war can remain with the free world. The Soviet has a long way to go, even with significant advances in such areas as industrial use of atomic energy.

The U.S.S.R. apparently is digging in for a long pull. Meanwhile, the problem of leadership is unsettled. On the eve of the 20th congress there are repeated warnings against "pseudo-economists" who dared suggest some of the Soviet riches go into the consumer

Ethel Barrymore Colt To Sing Here Monday

ARTIST TO PERFORM In the Community Concert program scheduled here for next Monday is Ethel Barrymore Colt, concert soprano. Her recital, "Songs of the Theater," will be at 8 P. M. in the high school auditorium.

The appearance of soprano Ethel Barrymore Colt, whose recital will be the second program in the Community Concert series here, has been moved ahead to next Monday, Feb. 6.

Originally scheduled to have appeared here a week later, Miss Colt asked to move the date up when she found it necessary to be in New York on the original date.

All members of the Community Concert have been notified of the change, according to Ralph Penn, president of the Association.

"Songs of the Theater" is the title of Miss Colt's recital, to be presented at the high school auditorium here at 8 P. M.

During the early years of her career, Miss Colt was noted as a dramatic actress. She appeared on and off Broadway with her famous mother, Ethel Barrymore, and with other stage stars, as well as in light opera, musical comedy and on the radio.

Her program will span the theatre's contribution to great music from Shakespeare's plays to musical theatre hit selections from "The King and I," "Foggy and Bess" and Cole Porter's "Kiss Me Kate."

THE COURSE of Miss Colt's singing career was set with her operatic debut in Baltimore as Micaela in "Carmen" and her subsequent appearance in 1944 singing the title role of "Martha" in the opening week of the then brand-new New York City Center Opera Company.

The flowering of this career came in 1949-50 under most unusual circumstances.

Miss Colt demonstrated that her famous name was not indispensable in gaining public and critical acceptance as a concert soprano when she auditioned for a role in Gluck's "Orpheus" by the Little Orchestra Society in Town Hall under economy. Former Premier Georgi Malenkov is identified in the Soviet mind with this sort of "right deviation."

The Kremlin, meanwhile, waits hopefully, apparently in the belief that economic crisis in the United States eventually must bring the capitalist world to its knees.

Automatic Plant To Open Nearby

Factory Will Make
Liquid Fertilizer

The first completely automatic plant in this area will be opened Friday.

To be operated in South Solon by Ohio Liquid Fertilizer, Inc., the plant will be the first in the state to make the new liquid fertilizers. Among the features of the opening ceremonies will be a talk by Richard Mannis, agronomist for the Sullivan Aylard Fertilizer Co. in Sullivan, Ill., and a tour of the plant.

The plant will be open for inspection from 1 to 2 P. M. Mannis' talk is scheduled for 2 P. M. at the South Solon community building and refreshments will be served afterwards.

Built on the foundation of the old South Solon elevator, which burned to the ground three years ago, the new plant measures 40 by 64 feet.

THE PLANT will have a capacity of 20 tons—4,000 gallons—of the fertilizer each hour. Production is on a "push-button" basis, according to the manager of the company, Leo Fisher of Washington C. H.

The components of the liquid fertilizer, which can be mixed to the same analyses as solid fertilizer, are measured into a mixing vat "like a washing machine," Fisher said. The measuring is done automatically, as is the mixing and heating of the combined chemicals.

The plant manager is Maynard Mickle of this city. Fisher will specialize in sales of the fertilizer, he said. At present, sales are planned within a ten-mile radius of South Solon.

President of the new company is A. L. Ohnstead and the treasurer is Alvin Armbrust. Both are residents of Washington C. H. and are associated with the Fayette Limestone Co.

Communists Said Soviet Minority

CIRCLEVILLE (AP) — Communists make up only about three per cent of the total Russian population, an American visitor to Russia has reported here.

Ralph E. Olsen of Ellsworth, Iowa, one of the American farmers who took a 47-day tour through Russia last summer, said six million Communists control 220 million Russians.

Olsen told a combined meeting of the Pickaway County Farm Bureau and the Pickaway Livestock Co-Op Assn. that Russian farmers get about the same pay as American farm workers. But, he said, butter is $5 a pound, eggs 25 to 50 cents each.

Mencken Friends Gather For Rites

BALTIMORE (AP) — A few old friends and the immediate family of H. L. Mencken gather today at an unnamed funeral home for last ceremonies for the famed author.

Mencken's brother August said editor in chief of the Baltimore Sunpapers, with which Mencken was associated most of his life, would address the small assembly briefly.

"We'll simply tell them Harry (the family nickname) left instructions there was to be no religious service. But he did want a few old friends around to speed him on his way," said the 66-year-old August.

The author died Sunday.

Mrs. Stanforth's fourth grade at Cherry Hill had a pleasant surprise last Monday. The praying mantis cocoon, which had been brought in by Emma Dell Custer last fall, had hatched.

A discussion of the usefulness of the praying mantis followed and many were surprised to learn that they are sometimes raised and sold to farmers for use in their gardens.

It was named praying mantis because it has the habit of lifting its front legs as if it were praying. Mantis usually live in warm countries, but the common European mantis can live in the northern United States.

When the mantis is at rest, it takes the praying position; but this is no way identifies its character. The mantis are listed among the greediest of all insects. They feed

The Record-Herald Tues., Jan. 31, 1956 5
Washington C. H. Ohio

not only upon other kinds of insects, but upon one another. A female mantis will not hesitate to eat her own mate if she is hungry. These insects prefer to eat live prey.

These animals often grow to five inches in length. Their color closely resembles the plant on which they stay, making it easy for them to escape notice. This is a good example of "protective coloring."

The female mantis lay their eggs in masses. They glue them to branches of trees and shrubs with a sticky substance from their bodies. A cocoon is then formed and here the eggs remain all winter long. If taken inside where it is warm, these cocoons will hatch much sooner, as was the case with the one in the fourth grade room.

The mantis is now being distributed in the United States because it eats harmful insects.

This proved to be a very interesting and exciting lesson in science.

Communists Said Soviet Minority

CIRCLEVILLE (U) — Communists make up only about three per cent of the total Russian population, an American visitor to Russia has reported here.

Ralph E. Olsen of Ellsworth, Iowa, one of the American farmers who took a 47-day tour through Russia last summer, said six million Communists control 220 million Russians.

Olsen told a combined meeting of the Pickaway County Farm Bureau and the Pickaway Livestock Co-Op Assn. that Russian farmers get about the same pay as American farm workers. But, he said, butter is $5 a pound, eggs 25 to 50 cents each.

Mencken Friends Gather For Rites

BALTIMORE (U) — A few old friends and the immediate family of H. L. Mencken gather today at an unnamed funeral home for last ceremonies for the famed author.

Mencken's brother August said editor in chief of the Baltimore Sunpapers, with which Mencken was associated most of his life, would address the small assembly briefly.

"We'll simply tell them Harry (the family nickname) left instructions there was to be no religious service. But he did want a few old friends around to speed him on his way," said the 66-year-old August.

The author died Sunday.

Mrs. Stanforth's fourth grade at Cherry Hill had a pleasant surprise last Monday. The praying mantis cocoon, which had been brought in by Emma Dell Custer last fall, had hatched.

A discussion of the usefulness of the praying mantis followed and many were surprised to learn that they are sometimes raised and sold to farmers for use in their gardens.

It was named praying mantis because it has the habit of lifting its front legs as if it were praying. Mantis usually live in warm countries, but the common European mantis can live in the northern United States.

When the mantis is at rest, it takes the praying position; but this is no way identifies its character. The mantis are listed among the greediest of all insects. They feed

Boy 3, Killed In Cleveland Well

CLEVELAND (U)—Playing in the snow behind his home in Willowby Hills, 3-year-old David J. Royon Jr. fell into a partially completed well.

His father, a city fireman, found the boy's lifeless body a few minutes later. The well was filled with mud, slush and water, topped with a thin layer of ice and snow.

LOST 29 LBS. Look and Feel Wonderful

COLUMBUS, OHIO.—"Before I started taking Renel Concentrate I was not only overweight, but I was also troubled with gas and shortness of breath," writes Beatrice Knapp, 955 E. Fulton, Columbus, O. "Since taking Renel I have lost 29 lbs. and I am not bothered with being short of breath, nor am I any longer troubled with gas."

The female mantis lay their eggs in masses. They glue them to branches of trees and shrubs with a sticky substance from their bodies. A cocoon is then formed and here the eggs remain all winter long. If taken inside where it is warm, these cocoons will hatch much sooner, as was the case with the one in the fourth grade room.

The mantis is now being distributed in the United States because it eats harmful insects.

This proved to be a very interesting and exciting lesson in science.

Parents Said Far Behind In Evaluating Children

By DOROTHY ROE Associated Press Women's Editor Mother to 14-year-old son: "I hope you're not going to start smoking at least until you are 21."

Son: "Don't worry, Mom. I quit smoking two years ago."

This is purportedly a real-life episode related by one La Homa Pringle, of Dallas and New York, mother of two sons, wife of a Texas salesman and editor of a brand new magazine called Young Set.

"Most parents today are about four to six years behind in evaluating their children," says La Homa, who is having the time of her life as a career woman, a state she achieved after some 20 years as a housewife and mother.

"Our kids are growing up faster than most of us realize these days. A 14-year-old today is as mature in outlook and activities as the 16-to-18-year-olds of a decade ago. The pace of life has stepped up."

"Much of the misunderstanding and conflict in today's younger generation is caused by parents who still treat their adolescent sons and daughters as children, when the boys and girls feel they are grown up."

La Homa has a lively and honest respect for today's youngsters. "There never has been another generation like this one," says she. "They are more self-reliant than their parents were at that age. They have more freedom, of course, and they have to learn how to handle it. Most of them are far more capable and mature than parents realize. And the things they want most are respect, friendliness and trust from the older generation—not suspicion and nagging."

Middletown, Willshire Still Tops In State

Gallipolis, Yorkville Stars Setting Pace As Chief Ohio Scorers

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Middletown in Class A, and Willshire in Class B, continued to pace Ohio's high school basketball teams today in the weekly Associated Press poll—but you had to look elsewhere for the individual scoring leaders.

Topping the point-getting list, with tournament time just around the corner, are John Milhoan of Gallipolis in Class A, and John Josefczyk of Yorkville in Class B. Milhoan, 6-5 center, scored 100 in two victories last week to run his 12-game total to 447 for an average of 37.2. Josefczyk, also 6-5, counted 43 in a 92-81 win over Mt. Pleasant—but didn't match his average. He has a 14-game total of 625 for a 44.6 per-game count.

The big news in the weekly voting by 38 sports editors—27 newspaper and 11 radio-television—was the huge jump made by two Stark County teams. That county for years has been the football hotbed, with Butler County generally setting the basketball pace.

Middletown and Hamilton, both of Butler, have been 1-2 all season in the poll. But Canton South and Canton Timken roared out a challenge today on Stark County's behalf. When the votes had been tabulated Hamilton was out of second place and Canton South was in. And snapping at Hamilton's heels was Canton Timken in fourth place.

The Middies held their biggest lead of the season, 35 poll points to Canton South's 186 on the 10-9-8-6-5 basis. Hamilton was only six points back of South, and Timken was only eight behind the Big Blue as the challengers bunched behind Paul Walker's Middletown crew.

The top 10 heights proved fatal for two teams which bowed into the elite list only a week ago. Mt. Vernon had moved into tenth in Class A with 10 straight wins, but promptly lost to Upper Arlington and Newark to drop back among the also-rans.

And in Class B, Hartsville had just climbed into the tenth spot, only to run into a 73-66 setback at the hands of Greentown. With the two losers dropping by the wayside, unbeaten Lorain (12-0) jumped into the Class A vacancy, and Strasburg (11-0) squeezed into 10th in Class B.

Boston Twp., after 14 straight victories, was dumped 52-39 by a Copley club which had lost five of its first six games, the townships skidding from third to ninth in Class B. East Liverpool was the big victim in Class A, losing 70-68 to Steubenville as the Big Red avenged an earlier two-point setback. The loss dropped the Potters from sixth to eighth.

Willshire took no chances on over-rendering first place in Class B. Coach Robert Games' stalwarts romped over Wren by 83-41 and Hoaglin-Jackson by 97-67. But Hamilton slipped in Class A although winning 70-54 over Springfield and 87-79 over Dayton Roosevelt.

Here is how Ohio sports editors rate the leading Class A and Class B high school basketball teams. Listed in parentheses are first place votes:

Piersall Honored For His Courage

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Jimmy Piersall, the Boston Red Sox outfielder who came back better than ever after a bout with a mental disorder, held the title today of the most courageous athlete of 1955.

The Philadelphia Sports Writers Assn. picked Piersall for its top award at its annual banquet.

Also honored were Robin Roberts, Philadelphia Phillies ace pitcher, as the year's outstanding athlete, and Bob Pellegrini, Maryland's All-America football star, as lineman of the year.

Couple Faces Trial In Death Of Heiress

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A bartender and his beautiful wife go on trial today on charges they performed the illegal operation that killed a young heiress two months after her story-book elopement with a motorcycle policeman.

Defendants in the case are Milton Schwartz, 49, and his wife, Rosalie, 42. Both have been free in $5,000 bail since their arrest.

The Schwartzs specifically are accused of abortion, abortion causing death and conspiracy in connection with the death of Mrs. Doris Jean Silver Ostericher, 22-year-old heiress to an East Coast food chain fortune. They face a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison and a $6,000 fine.

The red-haired beauty died in the Schwartzs' north Philadelphia apartment on the night of Aug. 24, three days before her 23rd birthday and exactly two months from the day she had eloped to Georgia with Earl M. Ostericher, Miami, Fla., policeman after a whirlwind, four-week romance.

The cause of her death, established by the medical examiner after an autopsy was performed, was an unsuccessful abortion. The girl's mother, Mrs. Gertrude Silver, is also charged with abortion, abortion causing death and conspiracy. Her father, vice president Herman Silver of the huge Food Fair supermarket chain, has not been implicated in the case.

March of Dimes Now Nears End

May Be Prolonged
Because Of Weather

With the March of Dimes approaching the end of the allotted campaign period and the highways and byways slippery and covered with snow, indications today were that the original deadline of Jan. 31 would be extended—or at least not adhered to very closely.

This came from Eli Craig, the chairman of the March.

The committee has not hung up a goal for the fund-raising efforts as an incentive or prod.

The campaign here has been carried on along three major fronts: (1) the Mothers March, (2) the blue crutch solicitation and (3) coin containers in places of business to get small change contributions. Backing these up were the special gifts.

Of the three, the Mothers March last week was counted on to get the biggest and best results; it was dealt severe blow, however, by the weather that slowed the marchers, especially those in the rural areas where there were long stretches of cold and slippery roads between houses.

Winter's blast also put a crimp in the march in Washington C. H., but on the scheduled night—the first of what has turned out to be a series of house calls—the mothers brought in contributions amounting to $2,793, Craig said. However, he added that Mrs. Herbert Sollars, the chairman of the city march, had expressed confidence that more would be coming in as soon as the snow-slowed marchers got their sections of the streets canvassed.

THE BLUE crutch contributions amounted to $241.23, it was announced after the money had all been turned in and added up. This was the money dropped into little containers for which little blue plastic crutches were fastened on the sides of the contributors by the high school girls of the WHS Y-club who took turns standing in the cold on the streets of the business section last Saturday.

March of Dimes leaders here viewed the blue crutch solicitation as important also because it focused attention on the dreaded potential of polio with healthy and happy young girls handing out a crutch, the symbol of what polio can do.

The little blue crutches also emphasized the need for treatment of those whose bodies are still tortured by the disease and need treatment, provided by money raised through the March of Dimes.

The coin cans, which have been in handy locations in places of business throughout the county for most of the month, probably will be picked up this week. There were not even any guesses as to how much they would yield in dollars and cents.

Bloodmobile Coming

east of here as the chairman of the committee.

Mrs. Wilson said she had not had time to lay any very detailed plans for recruiting donors, but she added that they would be outlined in a letter that would be sent to them.

Mrs. McArthur and Mrs. Wilson said that the planning for the donor sign-up was further complicated because the sorority would not have a meeting until next Monday night, only a week before the bloodmobile is due to come here.

Mrs. Wilson said she was going to ask each of the active members of the sorority to sign up at least four donors.

The Phi Beta Psi sorority has had a pretty good pattern set for it by the Professional Nurses Association which handled the donor recruiting for the bloodmobile's last visit here less than two months ago. At that time, 215 pints were donated—a record that will admittedly be hard to beat.

As in the past, the bloodmobile will set up its operations at the First Presbyterian Church. With few exceptions there will be the same staff of aides, nurses, nurses aides, physicians, donors of food for the canteen and transportation drivers.

Since there has been no word to the contrary, it is assumed that the quota will be 150 pints, the same as it has been for more than two years.

Superstitious people used to think that liverworts, small green plants, cured liver diseases.
